Since one set of corrected pages included confidential business information, all mailings containing corrected pages were sent to the Company Technical Contacts. Express mail packages containing a cover letter to the Company Technical Contact, 2 sets of corrected pages (one to keep and one to return), and a copy of the FYI letter sent to Company Signatory. Each Company Signatory was sent (by Express mail) an FYI letter and copy of the letter to the Company Technical Contact but not the corrected pages.

Rich:

How did these get sent (i.e., express mail, regular mail, courier service, other)? And to whom (technical contact or identified signatory)?

My guys need to know this so they can be looking in the right places for the package. Thx.

David
