

Hydrogen Fluoride
Information from the Toxic Release Inventory – 2008

Available in html at <http://fluoridealert.org/tri-2008.html>

It's important to note that not all industries or sources that release fluoride or fluorine into the environment are included in the U.S. EPA's Toxic Release Inventory (TRI). For example, the toxic fluoridating agents used in public drinking water fluoridation schemes, hexafluorosilicic acid (H₂SiF₆) and silicofluoride (Na₂SiF₆), (or their various other names, fluosilicic acid, sodium fluosilicate, etc.), are not listed. These are toxic wastes captured in the 'pollution controls' from the mining of phosphate rock. The major use of the mined phosphate is for agricultural fertilizer. Also not listed in TRI are uranium and radionuclides, which are also in phosphate rock and their mined products.

The 2008 TRI data for releases for hydrogen fluoride was 64,972,078 pounds, and for fluorine it was 91,874 pounds. The releases are generally self-reported, not measured, by industry. 2008 is the latest year with all data (the 2009 database is not complete).

Below are the 2008 TRI data for Hydrogen Fluoride sorted by:

Table 1. Industry category for releases

Table 2. State ranking for releases

Table 3. State releases (including Fluorine releases) by industry/town/county

TABLE 1: Hydrogen Fluoride releases in 2008 as reported by the Toxic Release Inventory
Category	Pounds Released
